New Creative Environment for Andrew Henry Interiors

Andrew Henry Interiors has been in operation for just over a year and his achievement of turning over £0.5m within that time has contributed to recent expansion of the company. With two additional employees and new purpose built premises in Wick near Bristol, Andrew and his team are looking forward to continued expansion of the business.

Keen for his office premises to reflect his passion for interiors Andrew Henry has chosen a rural setting in a striking barn conversion to house his newly appointed additional staff members with views across rolling west country hills.

Soon after inception, Andrew quickly appointed Jenny Larkin as a Senior Designer just three months into the business realising the demand that was already building momentum. Having been immersed in every aspect of the business over the past year, Jenny has recently been joined by Rachel Attfield, Junior Designer and recent graduate of Bath Spa University. Rachel formerly worked as an in-store designer at Laura Ashley. The busy team has also been joined by Lesley Wyrill who has been appointed as Office Manager.

Andrew comments, “We’ve worked really hard to build the business and the success we’ve achieved for our clients means we are now able to employ additional staff. New personalities and fresh ideas are vital to keep this young company vibrant and at the cutting edge of the industry. We now have an excellent balance of experience and youth to move the company forward. We have worked diligently to put ourselves in the fortunate position of servicing a high number of leading UK house builders alongside private residential clients.”
